

The same CAR-T construct, twice: a 633x collapse across three barriers, 1 of which does nothing here

NOT a clinical comparison. Every barrier value is an uncalibrated placeholder; the corpus establishes that the barriers are real and GENERAL rather than antigen-specific, not which of them dominates. The antigen ceiling is a CAP, so it contributes nothing unless it fires - here it does not, and the figure shows that rather than hiding it.